

WOMAN ARRESTED IN SLAYING EL CERRITO COUNCILMAN CALLED IN GRAFT HEARING

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Bobby Jones is again piling up victories in the British golf matches in Scotland.

Bobby is after every title that the British have — and he probably will bring them home.

Citizens of San Francisco were introduced to Bobby one night during the presentation of a play.

Up until then the golfer had been enjoying the play.

But from then on he was constantly embarrassed by the thousands of eyes that were upon him during the intermission.

This idea of being a public hero "isn't so hot" at times — especially when America has the habit of prying into the private life of its heroes.

Lindbergh is one man who refuses to talk to newspapermen about his private affairs.

And quite rightly, too.

Speaking of heroes, reminds us of authors — not because they are alike, but—

There is a certain Englishman who has gained worldwide fame for his stories, essays and poems.

Recently a story appeared in a popular weekly under his name — a story that was perhaps one of the most childish things we have ever read.

It would be a safe bet to make that this person's stuff was written by a hack writer.

A name sells many a story that otherwise would never see the printer's ink.

Which again reminds us of a certain woman who writes for a magazine.

Reading her stories and articles are like glancing over specimens of work done by a third grade grammar school pupil.

The words are childish and her sentence construction is of the simplest type.

One story started out as a child would write a composition.

"One day we decided to go for a ride—"

Often wondered how that stuff ever got by the editor.

But our wondering was cut short when the statement of ownership of the rag was published.

PHIL A. LEE TELLS OF 'BRIBE'

OAKLAND, May 27.—The alleged attempt of "bribery" of an El Cerrito city councilman was brought into the Eastbay paving graft hearing here today.

Phil A. Lee, former mayor of El Cerrito, and councilman, told the court that George A. Green, promoter for the California Construction company, came to his service station at Fairmont and San Pablo avenues, El Cerrito, in the summer of 1927, while proceedings for the paving of the Berkeley country club terrace district were pending before the council.

While getting gas, Green suggested he could have the service station yard paved and that it would not cost Lee a cent, the councilman said.

Offered Money.
Lee declared: "I told Green I had already arranged to have it paved by another company at a cost of $1,000. It was then that Green offered to pay me $1,000, less $25, which Green had paid for some advertising."

Lee said that he told Green he didn't want the $975.

Two days later, Lee testified, Mrs. Lee found a package at the postoffice addressed to her husband.

Money Found.
Lee declared that he opened the package in the presence of three witnesses and found $975 in currency. He declared he re-wrapped the package and sent it to the postoffice box address marked on the outside.

"Later," Lee said, "I found that the box was in the name of George A. Green."

Inspector Called.
District Attorney Earl Warren introduced the councilman and three other witnesses, declaring that he wished to show that Harry Lesser, A. A. Horwege and James Austin, company officials, were guilty of a state-wide conspiracy to bribe.

Earlier in the day, J. O. Allen, by former Richmond paving official, admitted receiving seven pay checks from the company.

His mother, Mrs. Louisa Northcott, also confined in the prison for her connection with the same crime for which her son was sentenced to die, visited him at the hospital today and joined with physicians in urging him to submit to an operation to save his life.

U. S. ACTS IN PROBE OF MURDER

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—With the issuance of a surprise warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Grace Berri, the federal government today took its first step in an effort to link the shooting of Mrs. Berri and Melville S. Sturtevant by Vincent Lucich, pes-legged gangster, with the Clint Mason rum ring in Marin county.

The warrant was based upon an affidavit filed by Assistant United States Attorney William A. O'Brien and ordered Mrs. Berri held as a "detained witness" in the original Marin county still case.

In this action, Mason and nine defendants, including Arnold Berri, the woman's husband were tried before a jury which disagreed.

Warrant Issued.
The warrant stated, "said witness Mrs. Grace Berri, has knowledge that the defendants, and each of them, did unlawfully manufacture, distribute and sell alcohol."

Mrs. Berri is now recovering in a Petaluma hospital from the effects of a revolver bullet fired into her shoulder by Lucich, Lucich is being held in the Marin county jail at San Rafael on the Sturtevant murder charge.

SPORTS

BANKERS, S. O. PLAY THE GAME

Leslie "Bezo" Marcus wanted to go home.

As a result, the Mechanics Bank must replay yesterday's City Twilight league game with the Standard Oil squad to break the 4 to 4 tie that stood at the end of the hard, hard contest.

The score was tied 4 to 4 at the conclusion of the seventh and last scheduled inning. In the eighth inning, only one run from both squads succeeded in getting it to first, both on balls. The Standard Oil boys still had no luck in the ninth, with but one man reaching first.

Loses Control

Then Walt Murphy, pitching for the Standards, lost control. Manuel Marcos popped out to Newell. San Filippo worked. Johnny Hutton walked. Barberi popped out to Lynch, and McLaughlin walked leading the bases. Then—Leslie Marcus assumed the responsibility of winning or losing the ball game for the Mechanics Bank. Murphy was still unable to snap the game over home plate, and piled up a total of three balls for Marcus. Many a rooster's eyes shut as Walt delivered the telling baseball. When their eyes opened once more upon the gathering dusk, the bankers were doing a festive dance around the diamond and M. San Filippo was crossing home plate. As far as the Mechanics Bank athletes and the sideline spectators knew, the game was over, and the Bankers had won their first game of the year.

But some sharp sighted here remarked that he had noticed that "Bezo" Marcus had not made his victorious way toward first base, and, to the astonishment of the cheering bankers, Pat O'Rourke proceeded to tag Marcus, who was departing from the field of battle. Immediately there rose a hue of cry, and Umpire Cabral became the center of an agitated mass of frantic hands.

Alas! alas, for the unfortunate bankers—San Filippo's run was thrown in the discard, and the game was declared a 4 to 4 tie.

Bono Chucks

The Mechanics Bank warriors last night learned the truth of the old adage, "Haste Makes Waste." Joe Bono held the mound position during the entire game for the Mechanics Bank. He allowed but four base hits, five walks, and whiffed seven Standard Oil players.

"Red" Newel started chucking for the Standard Oil, and held the mound position until the middle of the eighth inning. He allowed four hits, five walks, and gained seven strike-outs. Murphy, who started twirling for the Standard Oil aggregation in the middle of the eighth, allowed no hits, three walks, and fanned two bankers.

The Richmond City Twilight league game between the Firemen and the Native Sons will be played Thursday afternoon instead of Friday, due to Memorial Day which occurs on that date.

DANCE PASSES 302 HOUR MARK

"Keep Moving Kids."

With these words ringing in their ears, the seven couples surviving an opening field of 12 couples in the Marathon Van de Velle dance in El Cerrito, shuffled disconsolately onto the floor at 12 o'clock last night after having danced almost continuously for 302 hours.

Rules and regulations governing the contest have tightened down now, and any dancer found standing still is automatically disqualified. Headed by the veteran marathoner, Charles "Porky" Jacobs, the contestants have been dancing in an endless circle 45 minutes of each hour for more than 13 days.

Jacobs, champion of the world's championship for marathon dancing, boasts a unique record in such events. He has danced more than 20,000 hours in over 20 marathons, of which he has won 10. In addition to his marathon record, Jacobs is a prominent roller skater, and once remained in a barrel 25 days in the ocean off Venice. He is now dancing with Ruth Fisher, one of the popular Fisher sisters, who is competing in her first marathon.

Al "Keeley" Facini, of El Cerrito, and the only local youth in the contest, is dancing with Peggy Kline of Los Angeles, a veteran of several marathons in the south. Both appear to be in good condition and are confident they will not let Jacobs add to his laurels in this dance. Facini has become popular with the patrons of the dance by his singing, and a constant stream of requests have been sent in for him.

The rest of the boys and girls also have their eyes on the final prize, particularly Lela Compston, the "Iron Horse" who is now dancing with her third partner, Jerry Conway, the "Boop-boop-a-doo" boy. Babe Adams and Gladys Von Neida, winners of three marathons, Lloyd Reed and Eva Fisher, Joe Poole and Marian Reed, and Mary McLaughlin and C. Russell are the remaining contestants.

A duck which was presented to Joe Poole is the source of much interest on the platform. It has been officially adopted as a mascot, but considerable dissension has arisen as to what it should be named.

Bob Lee, the master of ceremonies and radio announcer, set the question last night by proclaiming "We'll call it either Joe or Josephine."

University Sets Budget

UNIVERSITY, Va.—The budget of the University of Virginia has passed the $2,000,000 mark. With revenues totaling $2,069,118 and expenditures of approximately $2,064,000 for the coming session expected, a margin of several thousand dollars will be allowed to care for any unexpected deficit.

six of their Walker cup teammates saw action.

Willing and Moe were the only Walker cup casualties. George Von Elm, and Francis Quimet defeated second round opponents and George Voigt scored a third round victory while Roland MacKenzie won by default in the second round.

King George Confined To Palace Home

LONDON, May 27.—UP—Rheumatism in the right hip compelled King George V to cancel his attendance at tonight's Royal court, leaving Queen Mary to greet scores of honored guests including eight American women.

While the king remained in his quarters, hoping to resume his engagements late this week, the Prince of Wales escorted the queen from the royal apartments to the throne hall, where she sat bowing as the visitors were presented.

The king's illness, which is said not to be serious, has no connection with the ailment which laid him low in the winter of 1928-29. It was announced officially that he had been suffering with painful rheumatism in the hip for some days past and had cancelled his attendance at both tonight's and tomorrow night's courts.

Lord Dawson of Penn., the king's physician, called at the palace and remained with the monarch for some time during the day. Later a palace official told the United Press:

"There is nothing to worry about. The rheumatism is localized. The king is up and about. He received General Sir William Peyton this morning. No bulletins regarding King George's condition will be issued, it was announced."

It was learned authoritatively that the rheumatism was yielding to massage and that the king sat in the sunshine in the palace gardens during the afternoon.

Though the king was absent from tonight's court, it was as brilliant as the two which had preceded it. There were 800 present, mostly debutantes dressed in pink. The prince of Wales was clad in the uniform of a colonel of the Welsh Guards as he escorted his mother to the throne.

The presentations took only two hours, because each guest curtained only once in the absence of King George.

California is second only to financial development, considering New York and Massachusetts in the number of people served.

California has more than $400 in savings deposits for every man woman and child.

HONEY CLOSES AT THEATER TODAY

"Honey" which closes today at the Fox-California theater is a sweet show. Miss Nancy Carroll, the darling of America's movie land, is the star. She is even sweeter than she was in "Sweetie" if that can be imagined. The reason is that "Sweetie" showed her to have moments of obstinacy, whereas "Honey" shows her as a completely delectable character who is at all times lovable.

"Honey" scored mightily with the fans at the Fox-California theater yesterday. It affords fascinating entertainment every moment. The comedy tempo is fast and riotous. The song sequences are exceptionally pleasing to the eye and ear.

The show, a musical romance with a negligible amount of dancing, is based on the famous stage hit, "Come Out of the Kitchen." Miss Carroll is the daughter of a poverty-stricken Virginia family who is forced to leave her parental mansion to Jobyna Ralston, a wealthy widow from the east, in order to gain money to pay off the mortgage.

When the widow moves into the mansion with her daughter, Lillian Roth; her chosen prospective son-in-law, Stanley Smith; and her detective guardian, Harry Green, there is a shortage of servants and Nancy and her brother, Skets Gallagher, are forced to assume the roles of cook and butler respectively.

A series of hilarious comedy episodes result from his situation. Of course Stanley Smith falls in love with Nancy, even though he is unaware that she is a high-born Virginian and not really in kitchen menial.

With the exception of Miss Carroll and Smith, who of course, are the romantic leads, every character in the cast is a genius of comedy and the picture is filled with their laugh-packed antics. ZaSu Pitts is as usual a scream in the role of a drolorous house-maid, and little Mitzie Green, nine-year old sensation, is excruciatingly funny as the prying and precocious Doris.

The pretty love theme finishes satisfactorily. "In My Little Hope Chest" is the leading song of the show. Miss Carroll and Smith sing it charmingly. Another smashing success is "Sing You Sinners," a Negro jubilee song which thrills with its tropic rhythm and clever staging. The other songs, rendered in uproariously funny fashion by the comedy support, are: "I Don't Need Atmosphere," "Let's Be Domestic," and "What Is This Power I Have."

Burke Rites To Be Held Here Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Agnes Catherine Burke, 65, who died at the family home at 238 Fourteenth street yesterday, will be held from the St. Mark's Catholic church tomorrow at ten o'clock. The funeral cortege will leave Currys parlors at 9:30 and interment will be in the family plot in Benicia.

Mrs. Burke was a native of Maine and came to California when she was five years of age. The family settled in Oroville and later moved to Benicia, where she lived until 20 years ago when she came to Richmond.

WHAT IS IT? ALL ABOUT?

"Courage consists not in hazarding without fear but being resolute minded in a just cause."

If there is one thing needed in the making of motion pictures, it is courage.

Irving Thalberg, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, had courage when he proposed to make The Rogue Song, a super-spectacle with Lawrence Tibbett as the star.

"Who is Lawrence Tibbett?" asked the minor executives on the M-G-M lot. No one seemed to know. The publicity department, that they said, was the place to get information; a press agent knows everything, therefore—they will know Lawrence Tibbett.

Did the press agents know Lawrence Tibbett? They never even heard of him.

So the picture was made. Practically a million dollars was spent because one man had courage—because one man was resolute minded.

Then what happened?

Lawrence Tibbett upset precedent. A grand opera singer, a concert artist, made good in the movies. To the mob, mind you, the mass of theatre-goers, those that relish their sex dramas, and swooning heroines—the mob came, and listened, and applauded. Lawrence Tibbett got over—he was a wow

a sock, a kick, a riot

a little bit of the quite all right.

And that—mind you—is the movies.

The same Lawrence Tibbett might have come to Los Angeles in grand opera, or on a concert tour; the hoity-toity of Hollywood would have dressed for the occasion, waned through the opera or the recital, gone home and forgotten him.

As an opera star Lawrence Tibbett would have enjoyed a small circle of music lovers; as a movie star, backed by the Thalberg courage, the Tibbett charm, voice and downright acting ability, will be known and appreciated by the world's millions.

And the pioneering of Thalberg and Tibbett will instill a respect and an ambition in the souls of other opera stars. No longer can they decay they are cheapening their art. The sincerity of their age old cry to bring art to the millions is now offered to them. The greatest avenue to create an appreciation of the finer things in music is open, the missionary work has been done by one of their own and by a daring and far sighted executive.

Others of the opera stage will surely follow Tibbett. Whether their success will be as instantaneous or not is for the future to tell us.

SEVENTY DEAD, 1000 HURT IN RIOTS

BOMBAY, May 27.—UP—Racial hatreds flamed anew in Rangoon, Bombay, and Dacca today, bringing the death list to 70 in vicious street fighting since Saturday.

The injured ran close to 1000, including many British police officers injured by stones.

The riots were the bloodiest since Mahatma Gandhi started the Indian independence campaign April 6. The fact that British police were forced to fire on Moslems in Dacca and Bombay was hailed by civil disobedience leaders as likely to throw Mohammedan support to the freedom movement hitherto confined almost wholly to Hindus.

The most sanguinary battles occurred at Rangoon, capital of Burma where strike dock workers yesterday began fighting with Indian and Burmese strike breakers. Rioting was renewed today and by noon the casualties had swelled to 52 dead and 476 injured. Many of the wounded were expected to die.

Ex-convict Admits Diamond Theft

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 27.—UP—William Hill, 39, Calexico, Calif., ex-convict, was arrested and confessed today that he held up Al C. He also confessed that he robbed a safe at a local drug store, March 24, after binding four of his victims.

CURTIS GIVES TARIFF BILL TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, May 27.—UP—Vice President Curtis upset the tariff bill applicant today. He sent the bill back to conference with an unexpected ruling that the house and senate conferees exceeded their authority by writing in "new legislation" by making the tariff commission's action under the flexible clause final unless the president vetoes it in 60 days.

The decision, accompanied by Democratic charges that regular Republicans were conspiring to kill the bill, sent tariff leaders scurrying to pick up their scattered apples and try to get the bill in form for passage.

Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee will call the conferees together, probably Thursday but there is little likelihood that anything will be done until next week.

Curtis' ruling has the effect of sending the house and conferees to cut out the 60 day clause, the most important change in the provision, which is closer to the president's heart than any other in the bill.

He did not rule on the constitutionality of the veto provision, which was attacked by the Democratic leaders on the floor today, but his action in eliminating it is conclusive.

ARMY, NAVY BICKER ON DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, May 27.—UP—Senate committee hearings on the London naval treaty today revealed the high command of the army and navy disagree regarding the manner in which we should fight a war with Japan.

Naval officers generally have stressed the problem of defending the Philippine Islands in event of war in the western Pacific. They explained we would have to carry a war to Japanese waters rather than wait for her feet to bring the war to us.

Rear Admiral A. Wylie, retired and Rear Admiral M. M. Taylor, director of naval war plans, today put the whole emphasis of a western Pacific war upon maintaining control of the Philippines.

This is contrary to the plans for the army's general staff to abandon the islands in event of war.

Wylie and Taylor challenged this strategy, insisting we should make the Philippines a base of operations for western Pacific warfare if hostilities came. With that in mind, Wylie said the London treaty would put "the United States into a position of inferiority in relation to Japan."

"There would be three stages in any western Pacific war," he said. They would be:

1. Holding Manila.
2. Establishing the fleet there.
3. Beginning naval operations against the enemy's fleet and commerce.

Five admirals who appeared before the foreign relations and naval affairs committee today unanimously opposed the treaty's cruiser provision and increased Japanese naval ratio.

Administration plans for the treaty are for a special session of the senate to be called.

CROSS NATION HOP RECORD MADE

LOS ANGELES, May 27.—UP—Appearing suddenly out of the dark, Capt. Roscoe Turner landed his plane at the Grand Central air terminal tonight after a flight from New York in which he made the fastest time ever accomplished on a trip from east to west.

He landed at 7:47 p. m., 18 hours and 44 minutes after he took off from Roosevelt field.

His time was 26 minutes less than that required by Captain Frank M. Hawks for a non-stop flight over the route in 1929. Turner stopped at Wichita for a few minutes about noon.

He said that he had a fast trip until leaving Wichita, the remainder of the way to Los Angeles he battled headwinds and a storm. "If it hadn't been for those conditions I'd have made it here before dark," Turner said.

Dr. Jenkins opened the meeting with introductions of the members and guests. Selections were played by the Orpheus trio, Vivian Vaughn, pianist, Audrey Nell Wilson, violinist, and Madeline Whittlesey, cello.

Miss Annie Woodall, past president of the California League, was the principal speaker of the evening. She congratulated the local club on its growth and told of the friendship the organization has given its members.

Richmond women were urged by Miss Woodall to attend the convention of the club to be held at Seaside, Oregon, June 13, 14 and 15. Eight states will be represented at the conference, she said.

Plays Given.
Two playlets were presented by Laura Kent and Virginia Bryant and were well received by the audience.

Preceding the installation, Dr. Rosa Powell, first president of the Richmond club, told of the history of the local club, describing work done during each of the five years since the club's inception.

BODIES OF DEAD HUNTED IN FIRE RUINED CITY COLISEUM

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 27.—UP—Rescuers, working under the glare of searchlights, tonight hunted through the blackened debris of the city coliseum here for additional victims in a fire which claimed two known dead, injured 12 others and did damage upwards of $500,000.

Two bodies, taken from the smoldering ruins were identified as those of R. A. Mason, city fireman and Gordon Smith, automobile dealer. It was believed by fire department authorities that from six to 20 persons reported missing would be found in the ruins.

The casualties resulted when firemen and volunteer workers rushed into the burning building in a futile attempt to save 200 automobiles stored in the building which belonged to the Buick Motor company. Three walls plunged down upon the workers, pinning many beneath them and cutting off the escape of others.

Fire Probed.
One investigation of the fire, by E. G. Cooper of the state fire marshal's office, the other by Fire Chief George Goff, were launched tonight. A preliminary report said a leaking gas main caused the blast but this was not officially accepted by either agency.

Damage to the building was estimated at $225,000. The automobile company's loss was placed at $320,000.

The program and ceremony were held in the banquet room of the hotel. A banquet was served.

Why Fat Men Stay Fat
"The trouble with me, and I guess this applies to 99% of the men who are putting on weight, I didn't have the energy or 'pep' to keep it off. Lost all interest in any healthy activity and just lazed around accumulating the old pounds until I got that 'Kruschen feeling'."

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves. This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Then watch the pounds slide off! Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 8-oz. bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at La Moine Drug Co. or any progressive drugist anywhere in the world.

KIN OF LOCAL WOMAN TAKEN BY DEATH

The mother of Mrs. W. M. Green of Richmond, Mrs. Van Valer, 71, herself a resident of this city for many years and prominent in local clubwork, died suddenly yesterday afternoon at the home of her son, Jerry Van Valer, 2025 Tenth avenue, Oakland.

Mrs. Van Valer was a native of Mariposa and a member of the order of Eastern Star, American Legion auxiliary, Ladies of the G. A. R. and the Oneta council of Richmond.

Besides Jerry Van Valer and Mrs. Green, she is survived by E. H. Van Valer, a son, Mrs. J. W. Turner, a daughter both of San Jose, Mrs. Charles Raff, a daughter, of Palo Alto, Harold Van Valer, a son, of South San Francisco, W. H. Van Valer, a son, of Oakland, Mrs. Frank Moody, a daughter, of Palo Alto, Mrs. W. Sublette, a daughter, of Los Angeles, Mrs. O. Ireland, a daughter, of Los Angeles, E. Van Valer, a son, of Los Angeles, and Rebecca Harris, a sister, of Richmond.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the residence of her son, Jerry Van Valer, 2025 Tenth avenue, Oakland. Cremation will be at Oakland.

Dynamite Laden Steamer Sinking

SEATTLE, May 27.—UP—A radio message, received by the Coast Guard here today said that the steamer Oduna of the Alaska Steamship company, carrying a cargo of dynamite, gasoline and oil, was aground and listing badly near Port Wells, Alaska.

The steamer Latoc left Cordova to go to the aid of the disabled ship and the steamer Discoverer also was proceeding toward the scene, the message said.

Captain J. Johansen is in command of the Oduna.

"We had run our hose lines into the building," Kirby said, "a hundred feet from the nearest door when suddenly everything went black and the walls crashed down upon us."

"Follow the hose line, came the captain's command. Men groped for the life, some fell and were trampled. I saw a faint light and rushed to it. Fireman Mason was at my side. Another wall fell. It caught Mason, I escaped. 'God save the rest of them,' were Mason's last words."

"I know at least five other men were buried under that wall," Kirby said.

ANTIPHONY

In an Old Italian Garden

I. He Sings:

Within this garden old
Pico once hid his gold
Under these cypress towers,
And for that golden store
Upon this flagstone floor
Youth's blood was spilt in showers

II. She Sings:

Here once Gentile saw
Lovely Lucrezia,
And in the moment's heat
Fixed on a canvas fair
Long braids of strawlike hair
That strained to touch her feet.

III. He Sings:

Over this garden wall,
Fleeing the cardinal,
Conradin dropped one night;
Back of that ancient vase
Is laid to be the place
He mounted in his flight.

Cardinal Tucio

Raged when he saw him go;
Red as his flaming hat
Became his face's hue,
But he could not pursue,
Being too old and fat.

IV. She Sings:

While men with naked swords,
Leading their bloody hordes,
Searched to achieve his death,
Nicolo made his vow
Where we are sitting now
In wondrous words of faith.

When Flammetta heard
The magic of each word
With a new light she beam'd
Though murder blazed without,
Heedless of roar and shout,
Here the two lovers dream'd.

V. Both Sing:

All this was long ago;
Dear lovely one, we know
How the world slips along;
In every land and age
Youth on love's pilgrimage
Dies in a little song.

Dear lovely one, we two
Treading the sunlight through,
Filled with deep drafts of moon,
Must bathe us in the blaze
Of life's great nights and days,
For youth is going soon.

J. H. WALLIS.

LOYAL LOVERS

BEACH of promise still being in order in the news columns—two of them, one in this city, have been won recently by grandmas and broken engagements mere paragraphs of commonplace in society columns, perhaps the question just put to us, in a passive, sceptical male voice-over-the-telephone, is pertinent—"Is there a loyal lover nowadays?"

We were, it is true, startled to the point of exclaiming, "Good heavens, let's hope so! What a depressing idea that there is not!" Then the voice went on to explain that the doubt of the modern Romeo's loyalty had arisen after reading Margaret Widdemer's new novel, "Loyal Lovers." And, if we didn't agree with the doubter, why not, and what did we think about it? "The problem was of interest to women—to men, too."

It is, without a doubt, that is why we, as well as Miss Widdemer, may write something about it. Since she has given fresh impetus to the discussion, her definition of a loyal lover may be summarized first.

She would seem to define him as one loyal to a promise to marry, whether made or kept with true love. Here, according to Miss Widdemer, is the code of masculine chivalry. Is it a code to which feminine common sense can subscribe?

FRANKLY, we think not, and Miss Widdemer's own heroine, Mildred, agrees with us. "What men call being honorable is sometimes simply being strained and foolish, looked at reasonably," she says.

"It didn't seem to her"—so she continues to analyze the case—"that there could be any reason strong enough to make it right for a man who loved one woman to marry another he did not love." With pardonable bitterness, she reflects that "after all, men don't do things entirely for honor and chivalry unless there's some reason they really want to." Against "chivalry which seemed to her cruel and insane" she sets reason, common sense, fairness, intelligence. She is, of course, in love with Hugh, and may be prejudiced against "loyalty" or anything else which keeps him away from her and in the clutches of another woman. Nevertheless, as we said, we agree with her, and we think the intelligently romantic modern woman admires and desires a loyal lover with the accent on the "love." She defines him as one whose first loyalty is to the spirit of love rather than to the letter of a vow.

In short, what is the use, what is the point, the modern woman asks, of keeping a lover in chains of loyalty, if you do not keep his love? What woman of sense and sensibility would not rather be flattered than married by a man who no longer cared for her?

"Thank you for nothing!" she would say to the old-fashioned epitome of chivalry offering such a sacrifice. And if he believed that by "loyalty" of act and word he could fool her, could hide his apostasy of heart—she would know infinitely better.

We're not, we hope, a sentimentalist in believing that loyal lovers still exist. But it's love to which we and other women want them to be loyal—when love is gone of what worth is loyalty in a vacuum? Nature isn't the only female who abhors it!

THE MAN OF IT

Mrs. Coolidge directed the moving activities. After signing the receipts at the warehouse for the goods there, the former President went to his law office. News notes that he isn't the only female who abhors it!

Just like any other hideaway husband on moving day!

"Why wasn't it born with any?"

"Why isn't a pig a bird?"

Hollandaise sauce is one of those delights of the epicure that often proves a stumbling block to the inexperienced cook. Any slight variation in its cooking and it is likely to separate and become a buttery, liquid mass suitable only for the garbage can. And a failure with Hollandaise is an expensive failure, because it requires a large amount of butter and egg yolks.

If dinner is to be delayed, genuine Hollandaise can be set down as a bad risk, for to be at its best it must be served the moment its cooking has been completed. And so, while the mere suggestion of putting flour or cornstarch thickening in Hollandaise is an outrage that would make any chef of cordon bleu rank protest violently, I am going to tell you how to make a mock Hollandaise sauce that can be kept in the double boiler after it is done without danger of having it separate.

I do not claim that this is as good as genuine Hollandaise, but it is a beating well.

MOCK HOLLANDAISE

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
1/2 teaspoon celery salt
2 cups water, meat or fowl stock
2 egg yolks, well beaten
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter (in addition to that above)

Melt the four tablespoons of butter in a double boiler and add flour, salt, pepper, celery salt and stock. Cook until a creamy sauce forms, stirring frequently. Add the egg yolks and beat well, then add the lemon juice a few drops at a time. Last, add the additional tablespoon of butter and cook for one minute.

Plants for the Formal Bed

By Karin Broberg

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

BEEDING plants are grown for the purpose of filling formal beds. The most popular of bedding plants is geranium in various colors. The secret of growing geranium successfully is to plant it where it will get plenty of sun and not to overwater it. Planted in partial shade the leaves will turn yellow and fall. While this plant likes rich soil, it must never have any great amount of fertilizer. Too much water and manure will produce luxuriant foliage but few, if any, flowers. The only way to keep geraniums blooming the entire season is to remove all flowers and leaves as soon as they show sign of fading. Geraniums are especially attractive when grown in a bed with an edging of blue lobelia or white sweet alyssum.

As a bedding plant the petunia is a close rival to the geranium. Petunias will grow in any rich garden soil. Although sun-lovers, they will do well in partial shade. The plants should be placed about nine inches apart. Tuberous-rooted begonias are also listed among the bedding plants. This class of plant will not stand cool nights. On the other hand, it will stand heat. Begonia is at its best when planted in partial shade. The tuberous-rooted begonia likes a rather rich, fibrous soil composed of leaf mould and rich garden loam suits it best. Never let it suffer from want of water; keep the ground moist in order to do this, drainage is a necessity.

Aside from the plants mentioned above we have other bedding plants, among them canna, coleus, verbena, gladiolus, snapdragon, sweet alyssum and scarlet sage.

Plan for a Boys' Club Room

By Alma Zaiss

WHAT YOUNG AMERICAN WOULD NOT BE PROUD TO BELONG TO A CLUB WITH SUCH AN ARTISTIC BACKGROUND?

Dear Miss Zaiss:

I suppose you must think it kind of strange for a boy to be writing you about interior decoration and such womanly pastimes. However, I think that after I explain my case you will understand what the trouble is and, if possible, help me out.

I am the President of a club which has been in existence for five years. We have occupied our club room—a furnished room—for that length of time. Unfortunately, we never have been able to either arrange our furniture or decorate the room as it should be fixed up. We have tried hard, but to no avail, and so I am appealing to you to help us out.

On the other page I have drawn a picture of our room, including its dimensions. The furniture we have is a sofa, a three-piece over-stuffed set, a three-piece leather set, two incidental chairs with leather seats and backs and a couch. The question is how to arrange them artistically. We've tried to do the job, but we can't. And we've tried to decorate the room properly, but we can't do that either.

We are prepared to spend as much money as is necessary for decoration, and we have two or three members who are quite handy with tools and who are willing to help as much as possible. We serve refreshments at our parties, but we haven't a table. I guess we can afford to get a table to serve our needs. Our room is a basement room which has been built at the house for the purpose of using it as an extra living room. The walls are painted light green and there is white moulding at the top and bottom of the walls.

A member has drawn sketches of three—(illegible word) to completely cover the doors. Are these drawings all right to use? You have told us how much my club would value your advice and appreciate your thoughtfulness in aiding us.

H. W.

Color and Character Suggested by a Mexican Sculptor

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

IF Mr. W.—and all young men and girls who are interested in attractive surroundings—could know how sincerely we value their interest in the work of the department, many more letters asking for suggestions for personal rooms, camps and club rooms would be found in our mail. Thus far a number of problems in decoration have been received from boys and men. Another letter sent in by a young woman requests a good scheme for the redecoration of her office. One from a business man asks for ideas on color and appointments for his new men's furnishing shop.

These letters, which depart from the beaten path, all indicate that readers appreciate the broad and practical service which the Home Decoration Department is prepared to give, and we hope that their publication will encourage correspondence from others who have special problems.

A reading of Mr. W.'s note indicates that the chief trouble with the club room is its lack of atmosphere. The should be practical, too, in the sense that all appointments will stand hard wear and action. And there should be provision for games, dancing, buffet suppers and such other activities as appeal to the members of a lively club.

Usually, in working out a problem, we travel step by step along the path that leads to completeness. But today let us change about and study first the illustration which gives a charming suggestion of the Mexican theme we hope the boys will find interesting for their room. To visualize the flashing color and bold design, the rugged beauty of such a scheme carried over and applied to the basement room under consideration is sufficient to give even the blasé home-maker a delicious thrill— isn't it?

And aside from the purely decorative quality of such appointments, what a romantic background they create for good Americans. The chairs and table shown are of pigskin. The rugs are Navajo; the wall hanging was woven by the Chimayo (New Mexican) tribe; pillows below the panel are Chimayo and Navajo squares; the black pottery lamp has a parchment shade decorated in true Hopi fashion. Elsewhere about the room are beautiful examples of Mexican pottery, Hopi baskets, wool-colored "Orabi" mats, while in the far corner a Pueblo drum of pigskin adds a final note of interest.

To us the truth of the setting—simple, without pretense or imitation—is its strongest charm, and is a point which we hope will appeal to the boys even more than its highly decorative effect.

Without following in detail the arrangement shown in the picture, much of its character could be given to the clubroom. For example, instead of the drawings the boys now use to mask the doors, Mexican blankets or Indian rugs could be hung over the two end doors, which are well placed for such a treatment. The walls of the basement are painted pale green which—provided the white moldings are also painted green—will not be at all boys' room scheme, although it allowed a choice of a plain sanded wall in oyster white or natural tones would have been more in keeping.

The floor (if of wood) should be toned down to a soft, rich brown and waxed, not varnished. Or, if waxing green—will not be at all boys' room scheme, although it allowed a choice of a plain sanded wall in oyster white or natural tones would have been more in keeping.

If money is no object, it would, of course, be ideal to use handsome Navajo rugs in the positions indicated on the diagram. But if it is not possible to get them—or let us put it this way—until it is possible to get them, a good effect can be obtained by using modern fibre rugs woven in designs that reflect good Indian colors and patterns.

At the windows there should be simple, colorful curtains of inexpensive plain or striped cotton emphasizing the colors found in the wall hangings. The curtains shown in the photograph are of hand-loomed cotton cloth from Guatemala, and in pattern and making they may be considered a good guide for the trimming of the club windows.

On the question of arrangement and new furniture it will be noted that the third couch mentioned in Mr. W.'s letter has been discarded to make room for a long table and bench and a red or black lacquer bridge set to be kept in perpetual readiness for games. A big table with a bookshelf above it and a seat on either side is almost essential for reading and writing—and when refreshments are in order it can be pressed into buffet service or used for a round-the-table affair. These pieces should be very plain and rather crude in type; it is quite likely that good designs can be found at a second hand shop, all varnish or gloss-finish removed, the wood stained a dark fumed oak and waxed by the boys themselves.

The leather upholstery mentioned is good for our scheme; the stuffed sofa and chairs should be covered with rough material equivalent to the striped or plain jute cloths, linens, monk's cloth or some rough cotton fabric of the swing or basket weave variety. If the set happens to be covered with tapestry or dressy cut velvet such as we find in many living rooms, it would be entirely out of key in the room we have outlined, and this discrepancy should be remedied as quickly as possible.

Other than to state that, so far as possible, accessories should be authentic pieces or good reproductions in keeping with the spirit of the room, we shall make no specific recommendations on this point. The boys should be free to choose what appeals to them, and will find it a good plan to visit the museums to study the implements and objects of art shown there before buying indiscriminately for the club room. If the scheme is to possess real character, it is worth giving the subject considerable thought.

We have endeavored to outline a consistent plan, the important features of which can be carried out at the present time, and the finishing touches added as the boys desire. It would be good to hear from them again when they have had time to make use of some of the suggestions.

Uses for Paper Doilies

THE square and rectangular shaped paper doilies that look so inviting in the shops have many other uses than to take the place of linens on the family table during the summer. Cutting into the proper widths, use the doilies to line the shelves of the bathroom medicine cabinet, or in one of the pastels. The dainty lingerie and handkerchief boxes which repose neatly on the dresser drawers look more enticing when lined with lace doilies, which may be changed quickly and easily as they show signs of soiling. The same thing applies to drawers in the desk, where such accessories as pencils, pens, erasers, clips and the like are kept.

TELLING THE WORLD

By Neal O'Hara

STOP, LOOK AND LOITER

JUSTICE has been speeded up in New York. You can now be arrested for walking. For hopping across the street while the green lights are on, they can pinch you and jug you and fine you. When you consider a jaywalker is liable to dent some fellow's front bumper with his torso, this hardly seems too much.

Traffic has always been Grover Whalen's favorite dish. Grover is the man who fixed it so you could get to a New York theatre on time and wait twenty minutes for the curtain to go up. After proving, via taxicabs, that three right angles are the shortest distance between two points, Grover took up the problem of "Why does a chicken cross the road?" You get a ticket that contains the answer.

The Police Commissioner is only protecting the jaywalker from himself. Grover figures it is better to have a gardenia in your lapel than a lily in your hand. And he has got the photographs to prove it. So on and after from now on, you can be juggled for loitering on the sidewalk or jaywalking on the asphalt. The pedestrian is always wrong.

Busy commuters will appreciate New York's new pedestrian rule. When you are hurrying for the 515 it is good clean fun to perch on the curbstone with nothing between you and your train but a parade of the products of General Motors. You may miss the train, but you see the whole parade. If Mr. Whalen's experiment is a success, it will be taken up by other cities. In fact, already it has sufficient nuisance value to be adopted as the Twentieth Amendment right now. If it's illegal to sell an empty bottle, it would be no trick at all to get the Supreme Court to rule that crossing the boulevard zigzag makes you a felon.

By 1935 the wise parent will not try teaching baby how to walk. The babe is liable to grow up and be criminal. It is better to teach your offspring to use taxicabs.

As things stand now, the pedestrian always has one foot in the patrol wagon. He can be arrested for crossing on green lights. He can be pulled in for loitering on the curb. He can be fined $5 for throwing on the sidewalk what a workman puts on the tip of a cigar. The only place a pedestrian is really safe from a ticket is in a revolving door.

In fact, the more we see pedestrians' rights chiseled by motorists, the more we favor bigger grade-crossing wrecks.

JUDGE—What's this man up for? OFFICER—Jaywalking, your honor. He crossed Sixth Avenue against the lights.

JUDGE—Anything to say for yourself, prisoner? PRISONER—Your honor, I have a wife and nine kids.

JUDGE—You should have thought of them before you left the curbstone. OFFICER—Any previous record? PRISONER—Plenty, your honor. Arrested 1924 for parking overtime on the sidewalk while watching a safe being hoisted through an office window. Convicted 1927 for leaning up against a hydrant. Sentenced 1929 for walking on the grass.

JUDGE—Just a hardened criminal. Thirty days.

THIS AND THAT

As we look at it, Red Cagle has gone out of the gridiron into the frying pan.

It was probably the bull operators in Wall Street who started the rumor that Texas would be split up five for one.

You are now seeing No. 21 Massachusetts Street in print for the last time.

"Anti-Saloon League Behind Fort."—Headline. With their ammunition rapidly giving out.

Answers to correspondents: A. W. E. Brown—The big 10 and 10-cent man-to-day is Rockefeller not Kresge.

The deluge of home runs seems to prove the 1930 baseball is harder than usual, but they must be ringing croquet balls in on Babe Ruth.

by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II.

SYNOPSIS

Fair-skinned Dawn, mystery girl of the African tribe in her East African Protectorate becomes the mystic bride of the black god Ma-lungu. The man she loves, Tom Aller, young plantation owner,
learns the secret of her whiteness.
When the Germans seize the British territory, Tom is transported to England, at the instigation of Shep, whip-wielding bully, who wants to be free to advance his sinister designs on Dawn. Tom resists and is with the colonial army that recaptures, without bloodshed, the British territory.
Dawn has been fighting Shep off, he threatens to expose her to the natives, as a white girl.

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-FOUR

"Quick! Get in here in de jungle," he snapped.

Dawn thought quickly. She reasoned that if Shep was eager to escape, the approaching men were unfriendly to him, therefore men she could trust.

"No," she said.

He drew his whip menacingly,
but the nearness of the singing voices restrained his impulse to send it whirling about her ears. He repeated his command, but in a voice so low it was almost gentle. Dawn, remained adamant. Shep stepped in front of her.

"All right," he said, between clenched teeth. "We wait, but

That information sobered Shep.
Though he suspected that these British were in command of the settlement, he had clung to a hope that they were a detail of prisoners in the service of Captain Eric.
Crawly, he determined on a switch of allegiance.

"I'm glad," he said after a short silence, "de British am in command. Before de Germans came I was de best friend the English folks had in de settlement."

The officer laughed. It might be sensible to mention as much to the colonel," he advised Shep.
"He's a charitable soul and may believe you. But as for me, I should like to spend my first furlough chasing you through these jungles."

But Shep only smiled. He had faith in a few dark tricks.

When Colonel Judson stripped Shep of his sergeant's chevrons and whip, and simultaneously all his power, he fancied himself free of all trouble with the natives. Indeed, he issued a friendly invitation to Captain Eric to capture a civilian clothes, to consider himself practically a free man.

"There's no sense, really, in carrying on in this abominable place as though the safety of the world depended on it," he said. "The world is unhappy enough, and we all get homesick. Will this drought never end?"

Eric grew thoughtful. "I gladly accept your kindness, Colonel Judson," he said, "but now that I'm a prisoner of war—"

"Don't consider yourself a prisoner of war, my friend."

"Ah, but technically, I am."

"Not in my presence."

"Then," requested Eric, "may I presume to offer a suggestion?"

"At any moment, sir," Judson assured him.

Eric addressed the British officer. "It is my suggestion that you impose a stricter discipline on everybody, soldiers and prisoners alike. Once the natives get the feeling that you are a kindly and tolerant man they will lose their fear of you."

"But my good Eric," expostulated Judson, "I do not wish the black beggars to fear me."

"You must," counseled the German. "Fear is the only god they know. Once they realize there are no harsh measures to restrict them, they will become insolent—even dangerous. They will flout all discipline. So many are dying."

The two were interrupted at that moment by the arrival of Major Milford, the medical officer. He was accompanied by Blink, now restored to normal, and a German captivity by reason of his freedom.

Both appeared deeply concerned about something. The medical officer was the first to speak.</

WOMAN HELD IN GANG SLAYING

eral days. Although attempts were made to remove her to a San Francisco institution Monday, the doctor in charge declared her condition was too serious to allow a move. She was reported feeling better tonight.

Issuance of the warrant for Mrs. Berri's arrest followed several days of intensive investigation of Marin county conditions by the special intelligence unit of the Federal prohibition forces. Several signed statements were taken from Mrs. Berri by the agents, and it is assumed the information in these documents led to the warrant.

Lucich continued blithe and happy in the county jail today, singing and joking with his jailers, and seemingly unconcerned over his predicaments.

Self Defense

Thomas P. Boyd, his defense attorney and a doctor came to the jail today and made an examination of Mrs. Berri's nose. The physician declared Lucich's nose had been broken recently.

It has already been indicated that Lucich will enter a plea of self-defense when he is tried for the killing of Sturtevant and wounding of Mrs. Berri at a lonely ranch on the shore of Tomales bay a week ago. The defense story is that Sturtevant attacked Lucich first, striking him on the nose with the butt of a revolver and then attempting to shoot him. The examination of his nose was made to bolster up this story.

Mrs. Berri insists Lucich planned to take both she and Sturtevant for a ride and opened fire without provocation.

Rev. Hudson Accepts Call

Word was received here recently by members of the Grace Lutheran church that Rev. Guy Hudson, who is graduating this week from the Lutheran Seminary at Fremont, Neb., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the local church. He plans to leave soon for Richmond, accompanied by his wife and two boys, and according to the plans, will reach here about the middle of June.

Rev. Hudson filled the local Lutheran pulpit for several weeks last fall, and was well liked by the congregation. Since his departure to complete his schooling, Rev. E. O. Hoffmeister, of Sacramento, has been filling the vacancy.

OPERATIONS OF GIGANTIC GEM THEFT GANG UNCOVERED

NEW YORK, May 27.—UP—With the seizure here late today of jewelry worth between $800,000 and $1,000,000—stored away in safe deposit vaults of four New York banks—Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney announced that detectives working out of his office have uncovered the greatest band of gem robbers in the history of the city.

The raids on the bank vaults came on the heels of the arrest yesterday of four men and a woman, found seated around a table in a room at the Commodore hotel, upon which was piled jewelry worth more than $300,000.

One man was arrested tonight and Commissioner Mulrooney, who intimated that his secret service officers have acquired a thorough knowledge of the gem ring's scope and activities, said that other arrests will follow, not only in New York but in other American cities.

Five Jailed

The five persons jailed yesterday after the raid on the hotel room are members of the ring, Commissioner Mulrooney said. Further investigation should lead, he believes, to the solution of a score or more big jewel robberies which have occurred in various parts of the United States over a period of years.

The man taken in custody today is Robert C. Nelson, 52, of Sheephead Bay L. I. Nelson is said to have admitted that he was a fence. According to Mulrooney, Nelson said that he frequented eastern race tracks and mixed with underworld figures there. Most of the jewelry seized today, he was quoted as saying, was purchased from men at the tracks.

Three of the safe deposit vaults were rented under Nelson's name and the fourth was in the name of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Keating, said to be Nelson's wife.

Jewels Taken

There were between 3000 and 5000 separate pieces of jewelry in today's seizure, comprising all manner of ornaments and trinkets. One $200,000 emerald ring, set in platinum was in the lot. There were highly valuable pearl necklaces, diamond and emerald bracelets and rings, cut and uncut stones, elaborate mountings, and innumerable other pieces. Police were busy tonight preparing a tabulated list and description of the confiscated gems.

While the safe deposit boxes were being opened, Commissioner Mulrooney revealed an unusual angle in the arrest yesterday of the four men and one woman at the Commodore.

When the detectives broke into the room the quintet was seated around a table, upon which was piled jeweled worth in excess of $300,000, the officers said. One of the men leaped to his feet, dashed to an open window and threw something out.

Bills Found

Detectives hurried downstairs and found a roll of bills containing $20,000 in $1,000 and $500 notes.

LAWYERS UNDER BAN FOR TALK OVER RADIO

SALEM, Ore., May 27.—UP—George W. Joseph, republican nominee for governor of Oregon, and Thomas Mannix, also an attorney of Portland, were disbarred from the practice of law in this state for life by the state supreme court today.

The action is final, and there can be no appeal. Disbarment of Joseph was based largely upon statements he made in radio addresses and in printed circulars, attacking characters of Justices Rand and McBride of the state supreme court several months ago.

Charges Made. In the opinion ordering his disbarment, the court said: "We concur in the conclusions of the referees that Joseph falsely and maliciously implied to Justices Rand and McBride corruption of the most sordid character and that, by reason thereof, is guilty of unprofessional conduct."

The court, however, said that Joseph might make application for reinstatement "whenever he files a fair and honorable retraction, not of his criticism, but of his charge of corruption, which reflects upon the honor of the court."

No such loop was allowed for Mannix. The referees had recommended his disbarment for three years, but the court made it for life. Charges against Mannix, filed by Joseph, were based upon Mannix's conduct of litigation in connection with the $500,000 August Wempe will case. Joseph was an opposing attorney in the litigation.

In Portland

Joseph, who has been a member of the state senate for several terms, has been a fighting force in Oregon politics for years. With a recommendation of disbarment hanging over him, he entered the Oregon primary campaign May 15, and won the republican nomination for governor. He made a vigorous fight against the big power interests and utilities.

Both Joseph and Mannix, who are in Portland, turned to Shakespeare and Napoleon for their answers to the court's action.

"Wasn't it Brutus who said: 'Justice, thou hast fled to Brutish beasts and men have lost their reason.' That is substantially the quotation, anyway."

Mannix said he expected to file a petition for a rehearing, but he indicated he was not hopeful of the outcome, saying:

"It was Napoleon who said: 'God fights on the side of the heaviest battalions.' I guess the adage has proved true again."
